Some text

When the time comes when the government understands that the it must make changes in order to make the future of the country better and when the government makes these changes it will be a better government than the one that is now in power. The government must be able to make decisions that are in the best interest of the country and not just the interests of a few people. The government must be able to make decisions that are in the best interest of the country and not just the interests of a few people.
